Where to submit Flash games?

So, you've been working hard on your latest game for weeks, or even months and finally the time has come to share it with the world! Uploading to MochiMedia and Maybe HeyZap, and hosting it on your own site or blog is a great start, but if you really want exposure you'll need to spread the word a little further!

This report contains a long list of sites where you can submit your game, and many that also offer sponsorship deals. It might take a while to work through the list, but it will be worth the effort...

This report is sponsored by ViralFlashGames.com

This is a free report for readers of FlashGamesClassroom.com. You have permission to share this with your friends, link to it, give it away and basically pass it around as much as you like, but please don't add to it or alter it in any way, or claim ownership!

If you're not already a Flash Games Classroom subscriber, and want to receive more information like this, articles and tutorials on developing Flash games, and loads more head over to [Flash Games Classroom](http://Flash Games Classroom).

If you've not done so already, please fill out our SURVEY which will help us develop the Flash games design and development course we're currently working on! Anyone who completes the survey will be offering a big discount when we launch!

The Big Guns

These are the big name sites that will give you the most exposure, so start your submissions here...

Whew... that list should keep you going for a while! If all that submitting seems a little daunting don't panic, there's no rule saying you need to do it all in one go!

Try submitting to just 5 or 10 sites every day, that shouldn't take too long, and before you know it your game will be on hundreds of sites!

If even that seems like an awful lot of work, then head over to Freelancer.com or Rentacoder.com and outsource it - you can hire someone there to do your submissions for you at a very reasonable price, and you can move on to creating your next game!
